San Francisco, CA (June 3, 2015) — In its sixth year, the 2015 Accounting MOVE Project reports a significant boost in the proportion of women partners and principals at the 47 CPA firms participating in the project—an average of 22%, up from 17% five years ago.

That means the bar is rising for candidates for the annual MOVE Project Best Public Accounting Firms for Women list, released yesterday by the Accounting & Financial Women's Alliance (AFWA) and American Women's Society of CPAs (AWSCPA).

OUM & Co. was named to the sixth Accounting MOVE Project Best CPA Firms for Women List, which recognizes firms with high proportions of women partners and principals. Three of the California-based firm's ten partners are women. This is OUM's first year participating in the project, which seeks to advance women in the profession.

Chris Millias, managing partner of OUM, says, "We're excited to be listed among the accounting firms that are leading the way for women. At OUM, we have a strong culture that recognizes, nurtures and develops talent. We're committed to our team's success and value ongoing learning, open communication and long-lasting relationships. Our camaraderie extends beyond our office walls, and we want everyone who works at OUM to perform at the highest level, including women."
